Once upon a time, in the depths of the ocean, a mermaid princess was singing, and a young prince was drowning ... she saved him ... he kissed her ... I love you, you love me ... you love me, I love you ... the mermaid exchanges her tail and sublime voice for two legs, but the prince, alas, marries another! The mermaid princess who, for the sake of love, loses love, dissolves into sea foam, and then into mist...

The little Mermaid lives in the depths of the ocean. All the creatures of the sea are spellbound by her beautiful voice. She sets off on a journey when suddenly a violent storm causes the shipwreck of a young prince's vessel. She manages to save the prince and delivers him ashore.

Once back home she is consumed by a lingering sadness, as she has fallen in love with the prince. So she decides to ask the sea witch to transform her into a young girl, able to live on dry land with her loved one. The sea witch demands the Mermaid's sublime voice in return for human legs and warns her that she will be turned into sea foam, should she fail to marry the prince. Mermaid accepts and presents herself at the prince's palace, but she is now mute and goes unrecognised by the prince and he marries another.

The Mermaid is furnished with a knife which will enable her to kill the prince and escape her destiny, but unable to kill the one she truly loves, throws away the knife and accepts her fate, dissolving into sea foam which in turn transforms into a cloud of mist and takes off into the sky.

Half woman, half fish, the mermaid princess discovers she is "different" when she meets the "other", a prince of sweet flesh and blood, who lives and breathes air. The power of an impossible love unites them, but in her pursuit of this forbidden union, the Mermaid renounces her true nature, losing her very essence and becoming unrecognisable, even in the eyes of her beloved.
